Jobs for Area Mayors Back Veterans Chase for New Term Week Set

Special emphasis on hiring veterans to fill vacant jobs will be given during "Hire a Veteran Week" in Torrance, May 12 through 18.

The annual event, endorsed by Gov. Reagan and Mayor Albert Isen, is held to call attention to the veterans, young and old, who are experienced, qualified workers in need of employment.

"Many young veterans are arriving fresh from the war in Vietnam," the mayor said. "They are mature and possess serious work attitudes, skills, and experience which would make them productive assets to the business and industry of this community. They stand ready to serve employers profitably as they have stood ready to serve their nation."

The Mayor pointed out that Americans of many races and creeds are among the veterans now returning to civilian life from war service.

Qualified veterans may be hired through the California State Employment Service office, 1016 Sartori Ave. Employers are urged to list their job vacancies there, so that the veterans may receive priority of referral to jobs as provided by law.

Six South Bay mayors have announced their support of Supervisor Burton W. Chace in his bid for re-election in the June 4 primary.

The mayors endorsing the incumbent Fourth District official include Floyd Carr of El Segundo, Albert Isen of Torrance, Russell Nicholson of Manhattan Beach, William Czuleger of Redondo Beach and James Cole of Lomita.

A total of 17 mayors across the district have gone on record in favor of Supervisor Chace. In a joint statement, the latest mayors to announce their support said:

"Supervisor Chace has provided this area with excellent representation on the Board of Supervisors. We urge all voters to return him to office in the interests of good government."

"He has been sensitive to our problems, and has attained results for the community as a whole."

"His policy of bringing full county services to the people, thus decentralizing government operations, has been particularly evident in this area where a $5 million courthouse and many branch offices of county departments are a reality.

"His conscientious attention to our roads programs have given us a fine network of streets and highways. Real progress in our storm drain needs have been made since Supervisor Chace took office."

"For these reasons and many more, we are pleased to support the candidacy of Supervisor Burton W. Chace."
